

Hotel Palais de la Mediterranée

The Palais de la Mediterranée has been a symbol of the French Riviera for over 80 years. Built in 1929, it immediately became a magnet for partying and luxury. The huge Art Deco building played host to all of the rich and famous until it closed down in 1978. Concorde Hotels & Resorts invested €120m, making it an exquisite, contemporary hotel, retaining its most symbolic features such as the monumental facade, listed as a historical monument since 1989. Inaugurated in January 2004, the Palais de la Mediterranée is nowadays one of Promenade des Anglais' most modern luxury hotel. Sharing the building with the eponymous casino and a superb auditorium, it provides all of the comfort of a recently-designed hotel while standing once again at the centre of the Nice lifestyle.
